LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

(Vice Admiral Sir F.C.T., Tudor, Commander in Chief). More interest than usual is shown by the British public in the China

Squadron. In pre-war days British warships added considerably to the attractive appearance of our magnificent harbour and everyone will be glad to see the harbour dotted once more with the ships that were dominating factor in the war. Here should prescribe that its members is the latest intelligence regarding the China Squadron, present and Ships in Harbour.-H.M. Ships:-Tamar, (Depot and receiving ship), Cadmus, Virago, Whiting, Moorhen, Sandpiper and Robin. H.M.S. Robin arrived yesterday.

At Canton .- H.M.S. Fame; At Wuchow. - H.M.S. Tarantulus. H.M.S. Carlisle, a light cruiser, expected to arrive here the third week in April. The Carlisle is a very fast small cruiser and this type of ship was used with great success as destroyer leaders during the war.

THE FLAGSHIP. The China Mail hears that one of the latest battle-cruisers is to be the the Admiral's flagship. H.M.S. Hawkins, a new ship with a speed of about 30 knots, will shortly commission and should arrive here about July.

MOTHER 103 CHILD 79.

It was reported at a meeting Depwade Guardians, Norfolk, that mother and child, aged respectively 103 and 70, had been admitted to the workhouse. They are Mrs. Sarah Balls, who received Royal congratulations on her birthday last July, and her daughter, Sarah Ann. Both are old-age pensioners, and for many years they had lived in a cottage at Harieston, neighbours constantly seeing after their needs. arrangements send 200,000 yards Lately, on account of the growing of bath-rotang and 30,000 blankets infirmity of the daughter, neighbours did not care for the responsibility, and as no one could be obtained to see after them the old couple consented to go to the workhouse.

CHINA AND JAPAN-UN-SETTLED GLAIMS.

The Paris Correspondent of the Morning Post; writing with regard to the Chinese delegation, says:-

It is believed that China will make a serious protest against the limited representation allowed her at the Peuce Conference." In Chinese circles here it is stated that China's primary purpose in entering the war was to obtain a seat at the Peace table. Slie recently arranged her domestic differences in order to present a united front at the Congress. Five Chinese Commissioners have arrived here, headed by Liu Cheng Hsiang, Foreign Minister, from Peking. Their chagrin at finding Chinese representation under Friday's decisions limited to two delegates is deep, and it is understood that they are seeking American aid. with the hope of obtaining larger representation. "As the Chinese see it, their principal opponents at the Congress will ernment, announced six weeks ago that it had reached an agreement with China under which the interests of both should be represented in cominon at the Peace Congress. This the Chinese now deny. They state, further, that their object is to obtain a settlement from the Allies us a body in regard to the respective claims of themselves and the Japanese as to territory and status, rather than to have these metters settled by agreement between China and

The view in diplomatic circles here is thus proportionate representation does not really matter, because the representatives of no nation can be required to agree to unpalatable peace terms. Complete accord must be reached between the nations represented; otherwise a joint peace with Germany is impossible. As voting does not take place as in Parlia.

and Germany among the Allies of the steamers for Liverpool will militarisms throughout the world duris understood, has agreed of the above, we write this in order cherishes the hope that permanent to mandatories. It being evident avoid the misunderstanding among ed. China is particularly interested always/ loved peace, and always cherished the desire of maintaining it above all else. It really needs no reiteration that she, "us a nation, desires peace both within and without her territory; but, largely owing to the distance separating her from Europe and America, it is more than probable that foreign flations have, not in the past known or understood her aims and ideals. The long duration of the war being due to the militarism of the Central European Powers, the President of the United States has now proposed the formation of a League of Nations. If, unfortunately, the League fails to become a fact, the Far East may become the first region dangerously diffected. .. Some Western people hold the view that it would be a great benefit to China if the railroads, present and prospective, could be internationalised until such time as China could take full control of all leased zones, and concessions were likewise internationalised as a temporary measure. From the point of view of China, however, a very different policy receives general endorsement, namely, that, with a view to preserving her territorial "integrity, all railroads leased zones; and concessions should revert to her absolute and complete control, internationalisation being unthought of. The right to construct new rail roads as well as existing concessions are governed by agreements, and cannot be dealt with in a summary way. The Government is now deliberating upon the best policy to meet th problem.

It is China's heartfelt desire that, in consequence of the development of commerce and industry, her relationship with other nations will become closer and more friendly; certainly not that her sovereign right should suffer from such development. It is noped the friendly Powers will understand that this dosire will work towards its fulfilment.

What a curious compilation might be made of the comments and conclusions of returned officer prisoners of war. How many officers, for in stance, would endouse, if they were candid, the verdict of one who spent a long time in by no means the worst of the camps? He said that the most trying thing of all was the constant association with a limited number of one's fellow-men; never to be able to get away from the society into which charce had thrown them. the whole moral crusade had failed. By Order of the Board of Directors, absolutely. While the moral side should be preached, the public health side should be given to the public. Dr. Amand Routh believed that to tell a man what means to adopt in order to avoid infection was to make him-more likely to yield to temptation. If a man came to him saying he was determined to go wrong, and asking his advice, he should refuse to give it as he believed that to do so would be to encourage the man in wrongdoing. Sir William Osler said the disease was just as rampant as ever. He saw 500 men in one camp infected within two weeks at one port. these men had been given outfits before they left their ship the disease would have been prevented in 95 per cent. of the cases. The National Council for Combating Venereal Disease had not taken the matter up from a public health standpoint and blazoned the country with a campaign from that point of view, and that was what was needed. The council had made it possible, however, for people to talk about these things without holding handkerchiefs to their faces, and had made the Press realise they should be publicly discussed. It was a job for the public health authorities. and just as soon as these authorities realised that, and felt they had public

NEEDLEWORK GUILD CORRESPONDENCE.

The China Mail has received copies of correspondence relating to Red Cross work at Vladivostok, where General Powell is the Commissioner. The General tells the Governor that the chief requirements now are summer garments. In a following despatch he reports a fire on Feb. 6 that these will be replaced by extra efforts on the part of the Red Cross capital. This will absorb $110,877.42 workers. To Mrs Stabb (who hopes "this may be the last appeal of its kind") the Matron wrote on Febuary 6 thanking the Hongkong Branch of Queen Mary's Needlework Guild. She suggests that Mr. Ralphs will be able to give them a vivid idea of the conditions up there. It is from Miss Mr. Gregor's point of view) 2 list as urgently needed all the time:

. Clothing for Refugees. Handkerchiefs. Dressing-gowns. Food-covers. Wash cloths.

So long as our own men up there need comforts, the Hongkong branch will continue work. They have enough material in stock for two more months, and further money is promised by the War Charities Com-

A circular letter from General Powell says that things had begun to look a little more hopeful by Feb. 22, After naming the British personnel, he gives details of the Russian, who were all refugees, collected in London and Paris. They include four medical. men. Unfortunately, the personnel had had to wait for equipment, that purchased in America and Canada having failed to arrive. They had had to buy things urgently needed from Japan. He was now organizing a train to take all West, to the Front. where they would have a 200-bed hospital. [His request for the further

OUR PEACE CELEBRATION.

[To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL".] Dear Sir. I think your correspondent. "Cartref Melus," is quite right and I also entirely agree with your leading article. Why waste mone on a City Hall, a motor road or anything else, mainly for our own edification?

The need at home is most serious and if Hongkong gave the lead with $1,245.10 its £1,500,000, others might well follow. By all means send it home to the Government; they can spend it far better than we can here.

As Chinese pay a large proportion of the taxes, should not some of them express their views about the retention of the 7% War Tax? Personally I consider it an admirable way of spreading the expenditure and I do. not see how anyone can mind paying

Those who feel they should give large sums from the gains they have made through the incidence of this War can find a hundred objects in need of funds, deserving support and direct Warconsequences "Charities" is a misnomer.

ROMANTIC LITERATURE

George Wyndham's Romantic Literature " (Macmillan), with a very interesting introduction by Mr. Charles Whibley, recalls to memory one of the most striking figures of our modern political history. George Wyndham died in June, 1913, and had, therefore no opportunity—such as came to him in earlier life at Suakim-of taking up arms in defence of his country in the great European War. But that he would have offered his services-he had been in the Coldstream Guards—with generous alacrity no one could ever doubt who knew his chivalrous disposition. He had the Mr. D. Forbes, Hon. Treasurer, C'o heart of a gallant soldier, perhaps due to his descent from some of those Cavaliers who did their best to save King Charles from his fate. There was also an Irish strain in his blood, for he was the grandnephew of Lord Edward Fitzgerald of " Ireland's "heroes. He was a great aristocrat," at once proud and modest, a preux Chevalier. a convinced Imperialist, sensitive on the point of honour, a fearless sportsman, and endowed with a sympathetic intelligence which made him at once a most capable critic and a loyal friend. "The gentry of England must not abdicate"-that was the keynote of his character and his ambition. For himself it was impossible to abdicate.

"ONLY A COLD."

"You ought to be isolated," said George, unsympathetically, as I sneezed foudly into my handkerchief.

"You're a danger to the com-munity," he went on "You're worse than a mad dog a man with scarlet fever, or a lunatic."

For goodness sake (sneeze)," said. "do try to (sneeze again) talk some sense (vigorous business with handkerchief) " It's only a cold."

at present," George snapped. All of them saying. Oh, it's only a cold I've got, and going about spreading their horrible germs. It ought to be against the law. A soldier who does not report sick gets run in before his C.O. and is punished, and I'm hanged if I see why cold—scattering civilians should be allowed to go scot free." He reloaded his pipe and continued.

"If people with colds had, under severe penalty, to shut themselves up away from their fellows, just as in influenza, diphtheria, or any other infectious or contagious diseases, it would be a tremendous advantage to the public in general and themselves

Look what happens now. Not one person in fifty who gets a cold thinks of going to bed on account of it. An ordinary sort of cold is no adequate excuse for staying away from work. What is the result?"

The whole office, or whatever itcatches the cold." I suggested Exactly," said George. "If I Were an employer I would forbid any member of my staff with a cold to come to work. It is certain to mean loss of money."

Because the person with the cold infects others?"

"Yes. And some of those infected probably have to lie up in the end. Why, in London alone during the winter the loss of services of people who catch colds from others must amount to thousands of hours a day. These hours represent money not earned by employers. If you multiply this sum-whatever it is-by weeks and then by all the towns concerned, the total loss must run into millions."

"I never looked at it in that light before (sneeze)." I said, "but 'ponmy soul I believe you're tight (sneeze), George." George is right. Why should people with colds be evils? Why should not a cold be a notifiable disease? Perhaps the coming Ministry of Health will take the cold-fiend in hand and isolate him, please?

THOSE WHO SLANDER

A lady presented herself to Philip Neri one day accusing herself of being a slanderer. Do you fre-Fquently fall into this fault?" inquired he. "Yes father, very often," replied: the penitent. "Woman," said Philip, your fault is great, for your penance you must do as follows: go to the nearest market and purchase a chicken just killed, and still covered with feathers; you will then walk to a certain distance, plucking the feathers as you go along. Your walk pfinished, and the feathers plucked, you will return to me." Accordingly, she went to the market, bought the chicken, and set out on the journey, plucking it as she went along. When her task was done, she returned and reported that she had done as she had been told, and ventured to inquire for the meaning of so sing, ular a penance. "Ah," said Philip, You have been very faithful to the first part of my orders be as faithful with the second. Go back again, over the same road you just now walked, and gather up one by one all the feathers you have scattered." "But, father," exclaimed the astonished woman, L'Cast them carelessly on very side; the wind carried them in every direction. How can I recover them?" "Woman:" replied he, "so it is with your words of slander; like the feathers they have been scattered. Call them back -if you can. Go, and sin no more." MORTALITY AMONG NATIVES.

WHY THD PACIFIC ISLANDER! ARE DYING OUT.

The natives of the Pacific, states The Times Sydney correspondent, are rapidly dying out, and a Government official in the Gilbert Islands attributes the decay to the introduction of European clothing, which undermines the native's constitution. He declares that the missionaries are doing wonderful work, but that they are making a grievous mistake in insisting on the wearing of clothes in these remote islands.

Another cause was given by Mr. Basil Matthews, editorial secretary of the London Missionary Society, who was seen on January 25 by an
